AMÉRICAS AWARD K-12 TEACHER WORKSHOP
USING CHILDREN’S LITERATURE TO EXPLORE LATIN AMERICAN/LATINO CULTURAL HERITAGE

Tulane University and Vanderbilt University’s Centers for Latin American Studies are collaborating to offer an exciting K-12 teacher workshop as part of the Américas Award ceremony at the Library of Congress. The workshop will focus on strategies to incorporate Latin American and Latino children’s literature into the K-12 classroom. Facilitators of the workshop include 2012 Américas Award Winners Monica Brown, author, and Julie Paschkis, illustrator, of Pablo Neruda: Poet of the People (2011, Henry Holt and Company.)

This workshop is sponsored in part by the Consortium of Latin American Studies Programs (CLASP), Teaching for Change, Tulane University’s Stone Center for Latin American Studies, Vanderbilt University’s Center for Latin American Studies, and the University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee’s Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies.
