KEYNOTE SPEAKER: MARCELLO CANUTO

ADDRESS TITLE: “Maya Road Warriors: The Kaanal Kings Building a Classic Maya Empire”

(Dr. Canuto is the current director of the Middle American Research Institute (MARI) at Tulane University)

SYNOPSIS: Recent research on the lowland Maya civilization has outlined the development of a political behemoth during the Classic period that extended its influence from Honduras to Chiapas to the northern Yucatan. Ruled by a long-lived dynasty---known as Kaanal---this kingdom was at its apex in the mid-7th century AD. During its apogee, it developed a “royal road” that connected the northern central lowlands with the Guatemalan highlands while also skirting much of the area controlled by its arch-rival, Tikal. Along a critical stretch of this "royal road" lay the modestly-sized site known today as La Corona, which is the subject of this keynote address.
