Terra para Rose
(Land for Rose, 1987)
Dir. Tetê Moraes. 84 min.
In Portuguese with English subtitles.

Terra para Rose is an emotionally wrenching socially committed documentary about the land reforms during the transition from dictatorship to democracy in Brazil. In 1985, the government designed a plan to confiscate 43 million hectares of land from large landowners and to divide them among a million and a half landless farmers’ families. Tetê Moraes focuses on one of the first occupations organized by the Landless Movement (Movemento Sem Terra, MSM) in Rio Grande do Sul in 1985.

The screening will be preceded by a short introduction.
